When using our websites, this Policy should be read alongside, and in addition to, the website terms and conditions and the Privacy Policy on the website.

2. What are Cookies?

A cookie is a small file placed onto your computer or mobile device by the web browser that enable features and functionality of that website. They are used to make websites work, or work more efficiently, and to provide information to site owners.

We use cookies for a variety of reasons, such as to: (1) keep your settings within a browsing session; (2) allow you to use our Sites more conveniently; (3) enable login; (4) speed up employee’s searches; and (5) allow us to improve and update our Sites.

Transmitted cookie data or cookie storage does not grant us access to your computer or any information about you, other than the data you choose to share with us (through explicitly requested access or services).

We also work with third parties in providing you services through our websites and they may set a cookie on your computer as part of this arrangement. These cookies facilitate seamless access to areas of the Sites which are administered by the 3rd party or track usage to continuously improve our offering.

The majority of cookies are deleted as soon as you close your browser; these are known as session cookies. A session cookie is essential to ensure the correct functioning of our Sites. These are used to provide seamless access to areas of our Sites requiring additional authentication – or to track visit specific entries. The data contained within the cookie does not personally identify the user.

Persistent cookies are stored on your computer either until they are manually deleted, or they expire. These cookies are automatically cleared from the computer by the web browser upon expiration. We use persistent cookies to manage some secure login information when required to allow access to aspects of our Sites.

Individuals can opt in to accept or opt out to decline cookies via adjustment to their Web Browsers default behaviour. Most web browsers default to automatically accepting transmitted cookies and storing them locally. This behaviour can be modified within the Web Browser configuration to decline cookies if you prefer. However, adjustment of these settings may prevent you from taking full advantage of our Sites features.

We further categorise cookies into System, Essential, Editor and Visitor types.

- System cookies are provided by the technology framework used to deliver our content to you, via the Web Browser.
- Essential cookies are required to allow some features of our Sites to work. These are strictly necessary cookies. They enable you to navigate our Sites and use features that are explicitly requested.
- Editor cookies are used during site administration
- Visitor cookies are used to track Site usage to help us improve the Sites offering.

A comprehensive list detailing the cookies in use by our Sites, their purpose, origin and retention policy is detailed at the end of this document. We reserve the right to update this list (together with the rest of this policy) from time to time – without notification.

3. Managing Your Cookie Choice

A cookie is a small file placed onto your computer or mobile device by the web browser. Details on how cookies are managed by your Web Browser are available via the Help sections of your preferred Browsing program. Alternatively – the links below provide details on Web Browser specific cookie management for several the larger Web Browser programs:

Performance Cookies: First-Party

Host	Name	Details
coverys.com	_hjFirstSeen	Description: Identifies a new user's first session on a website, indicating whether or not Hotjar's seeing this user for the first time. Lifespan: a few seconds coverys.com	_ga	Description: This cookie name is associated with Google Universal Analytics - which is a significant update to Google's more commonly used analytics service. This cookie is used to distinguish unique users by assigning a randomly generated number as a client identifier. It is included in each page request in a site and used to calculate visitor, session and campaign data for the site's analytics reports. By default, it is set to expire after 2 years, although this is customisable by website owners. Lifespan: 2 year coverys.com	_hjTLDTTest	Description: When the Hotjar script executes we try to determine the most generic cookie path we should use, instead of the page hostname. This is done so that cookies can be shared across subdomains (where applicable). To determine this, we try to store the _hjTLDTTest cookie for different URL substring alternatives until it fails. After this check, the cookie is removed. Lifespan: Session coverys.com	__hstc	Description: This cookie name is associated with websites built on the HubSpot platform. It is reported by them as being used for website analytics. Lifespan: 5 months coverys.com	_hjAbsoluteSessionInProgress	Description: This cookie is used by HotJar to detect the first pageview session of a user. This is a True/False flag set by the cookie. Lifespan: a few seconds coverys.com	__hssrc	Description: This cookie name is associated with websites built on the HubSpot platform. It is reported by them as being used for website analytics. Lifespan: Session coverys.com	_hjSessionUser_XXXXXX	Description: Hotjar cookie that is set when a user first lands on a page with the Hotjar script. It is used to persist the Hotjar User ID, unique to that site on the browser. This ensures that behavior in subsequent visits to the same site will be attributed to the same user ID. Lifespan: 1 year coverys.com	_hjSession_XXXXXX	Description: A cookie that holds the current session data. This ensures that subsequent requests within the session window will be attributed to the same Hotjar session. Lifespan: a few seconds coverys.com	__hssc	Description: This cookie name is associated with websites built on the HubSpot platform. It is reported by them as being used for website analytics. Lifespan: a few seconds

coverys.com	_gid	Description: This cookie name is associated with Google Universal Analytics. This appears to be a new cookie and as of Spring 2017 no information is available from Google. It appears to store and update a unique value for each page visited. _gid
